TOP 15 THINGS TEACHERS HATE

Real responses from Real teachers on Facebook

All-day meetings
on teacher workdays

When children run out of money on their lunch account, or when they don't have money for the book fair.
It makes me sad.

Parents who act like they all of a sudden care about their child's grades the last week of school.
Especially after not returning calls or coming in for conferences the entire year.

When people ask
you why are you tired -
at the end of the day...
I teach preschool.

Decisions being made by people who have zero classroom
experience!

My sore back after sitting in my crummy chair!

When parents
do the homework
for a child... and it's wrong.

Not enough supplies!

Students not being encouraged to think
outside of the box

When others think
we only work 8:00-3:30
& have summers off...
they have no idea
how many hours we put in all year long!!!

Students being tardy to class.

Excuses! (From
admin, other teachers,
students, and parents)

Overcrowded classrooms!
I work in the state of Washington. Need I say more?

Paperwork,
paperwork,
paperwork!

Parents who do not care!
